

Injection Lipolysis

Injection lipolysis, also known as non-surgical liposuction, allows for the permanent and effective removal of even the most stubborn fat tissue from the face and body.

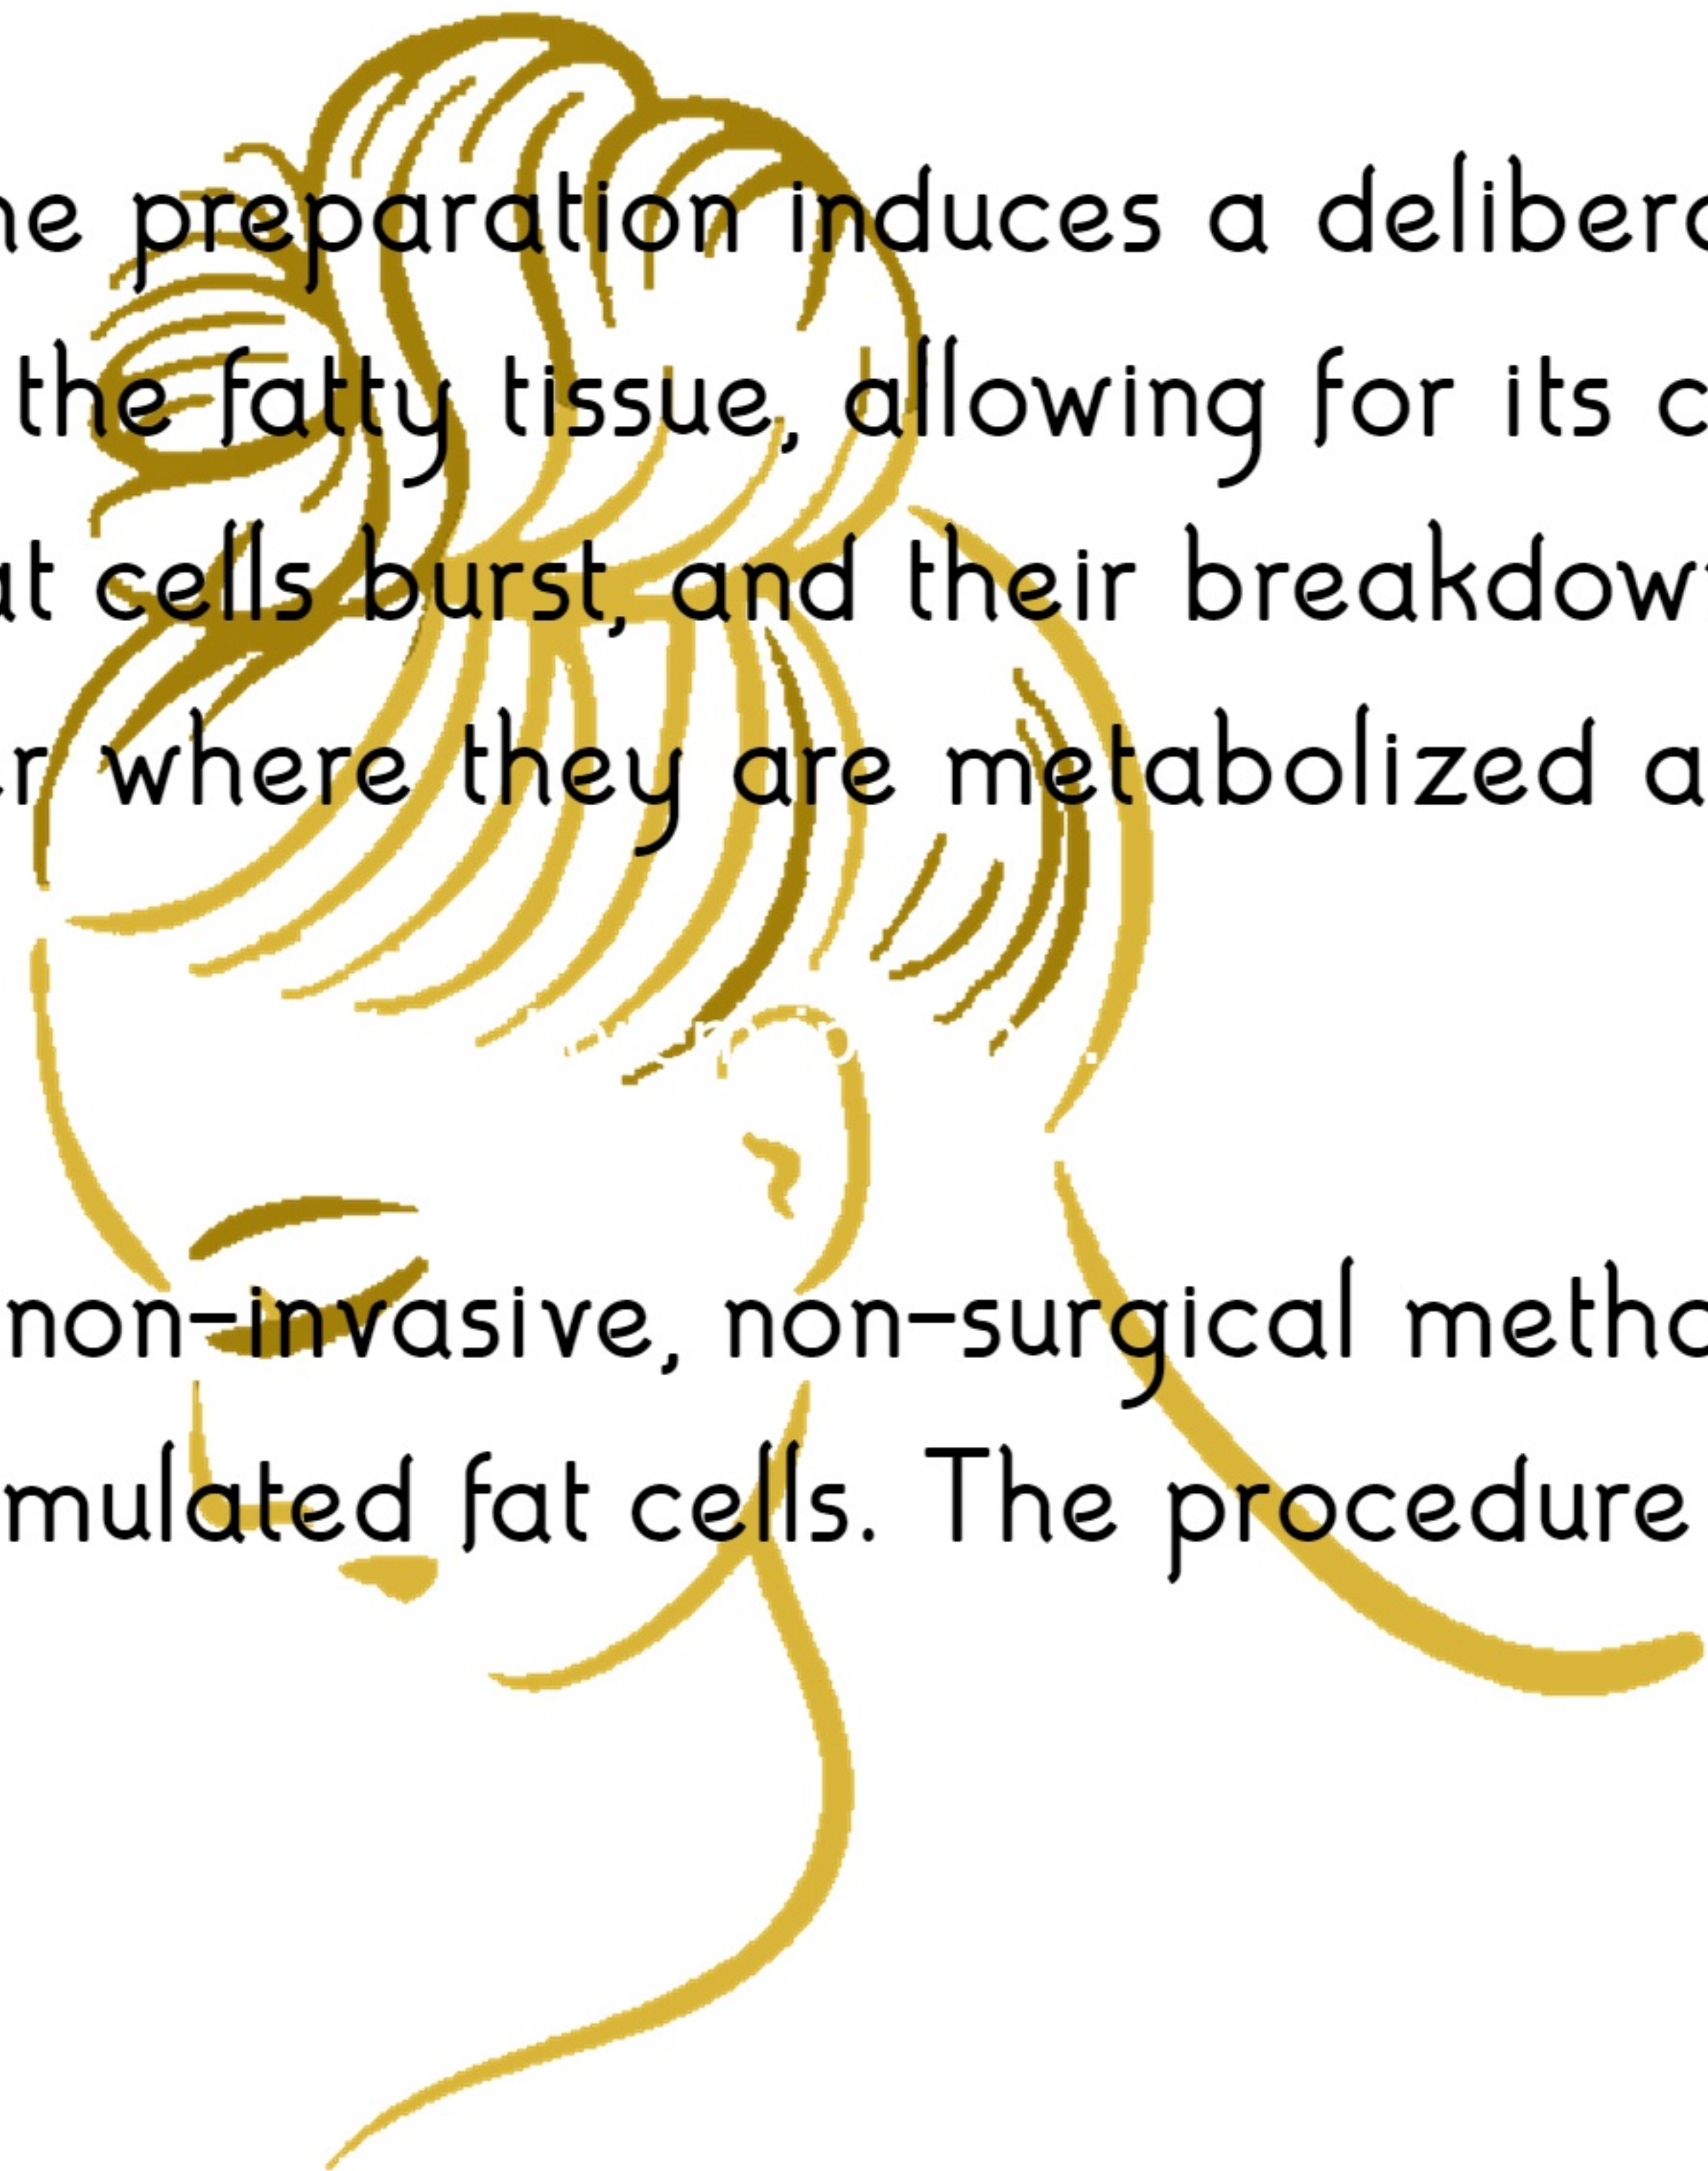

At the injection site, the preparation induces a deliberate, gentle inflammatory state in the fatty tissue, allowing for its complete breakdown. Swollen fat cells burst, and their breakdown products are transported to the liver where they are metabolized and excreted from the body.

Injection lipolysis is a non-invasive, non-surgical method for permanently removing locally accumulated fat cells. The procedure is painless, fast, and effective.

Indications:

- Double chin
- Excess fat accumulation in the abdominal area
- Excessive fat tissue located in the thighs, hips, and buttocks
- Fat pads in the armpit area
- Fat tissue located around the knees
- Body contouring
- Folds on the back

The number of treatments and the amount of preparation are determined during individual consultations
